

Checks and Balances in the Constitution

Each branch has some power (a check) over the other two, which would act to keep any one branch from acquiring too much power.

